

SCOOP4C Newsletter No. 13

Dear stakeholder community,

Spring is here! While the weather is getting warmer, SCOOP4C is working on exciting new projects surrounding the once-only principle. This past month we have been focusing on data protection and privacy issues concerning the implementation of once-only. How can we protect personal data of citizens and address privacy and trust concerns while also reducing the administrative burden of citizens and making digital public services more efficient? To discuss this, we want to hear it from you: Our privacy workshop next month in Brussels will be steered towards civil society actors across the EU to discuss digital rights, data protection and the new General Data Protection Regulation. Join us and follow us on our social media channels to stay updated!

Best wishes,

The SCOOP4C project team

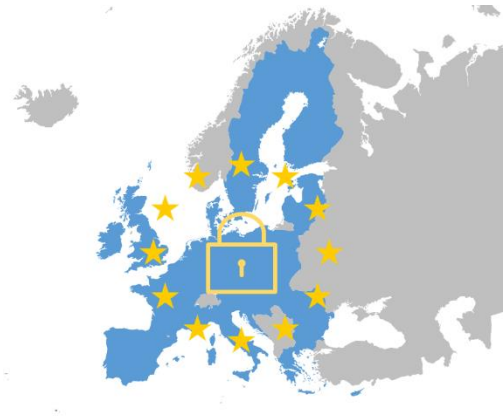

Transparent Citizens by Design?

Our next stakeholder workshop is coming up. On April 26th, 2018 we will be in Brussels, Belgium to discuss data protection and privacy issues concerning the once-only principle. Join us!

SEE MORE

2 more months until GDPR comes into effect

The General Data Protection Regulation comes into effect on May 25th, 2018. Find out more about the new data protection regulation and how it will affect the implementation of the once-only principle here:

SEE MORE

WIKIPEDIA
The Free Encyclopedia

Wikipedia article on "once-only principle" is published

We have published a "once-only principle" article on Wikipedia in English and German in order to spread awareness around once-only. Please contribute by adding information or translating the article into your mother tongue.

SEE MORE

 Share

 Tweet

 Share

